

Parameter Names and Types

Parameter names identify the local or global parameters that are defined by you or that are specified by the SRC software. The parameter name is a string of alphanumeric characters starting with a letter that does not contain spaces or special characters.

Parameters fall into different categories, known as types. For example, a parameter that defines an IP address has the type address.

- Related Topics
- Parameters and Substitutions
 - Parameter Types
 - Expressions in Parameters
 - Defining Parameters for the SRC Software

